

- What is devops? What are the roles of devops engineer in an organization?

Deveops is made up of two words which are development and operation.

In deveops development and operation are combined to increase the performance.

The roles for deveops engineer can be building cicd pipeline, managing them.
and writing scripts and creating infrastructure

- Differentiate between traditional development and Devops.

In traditional development method first product was created then sent towards the operation team to test the product but in deveops with the tools like cicd the testing is also done in the same phase of development.
